Summary

After starting my professional path in investment banking, I joined the renewable energy sector driven by a passionate commitment to facilitating the “energy revolution”. Since then, I have gained extensive experience across the entire value chain of photovoltaic investments, from development to construction to asset management. My work in this field is fueled by a strong belief in the transformative power of renewable energy as a key contributor to the health of our planet. I am a fervent advocate for sustainability and thrive in purpose-driven work environments that emphasize continuous learning and innovation. As a strong ambassador for workplace well-being, I champion a people-centric culture that is healthy, transparent, and meritocratic. My goal is to create and maintain a space where everyone can excel and make a meaningful impact on the surrounding environment, contributing to a brighter future.
